At The Japanese Embassy By Berton Braley

Here is the hive where the Japanese swarm, Buzzing like bees that have work to perform, Tall Japs and small Japs and fat Japs and thin. Bright-eyed and beaming and yellow of skin, Wary Japs, merry Japs, Japs that are cocky, Jans from Kobe, Tokyo, Nagasaki, Janainese journalists, dowdy or natty. Most of them spectacled, all of them chatty, Forty or more in a sort of a mob, Londly, intensely, discussing their job.

Doors open inward and doors open out, Clerks and attaches go rushing about, Bearing portfolios full of strange mysteries, Foreign embroglios, deep secret histories, Or-here's a simpler, more probable hund Full of engraved invitations to lunch. Tongues are a chatter and typewriters clatter. Many feet patter in office and hall, Japs very busily run around dizzily, Notesly seems to be quiet at all. Down in the basement the chopsticks are clicking,

Somewhere above there's a telegraph ticking,

Everyone's hurrying, scurrying, worrying,

Who said the Japs are a stoleal race? They could set even us Yankees a pace. Still in this maels com of business-like noise Nippon's three delegates hold to their poise; They are sphures whose riddle we seek. What will their answer be when they small speak? Back of those lineaments, calm, Oriental, Back of those smiles so excessively dental, What is the object that Kato's arriving at? What is the goal Shidehara is driving at?

What's in the mind and the heart of Japan? Will they come out mathe open to gain it? Or subtly and secretly strive to attain it? Darned if I know -- I can't speak Japanese ---All that I'm sure is they're busy as bees. Busy as been in the summer and spring, Bers who, we hope, will refigged h their sting.
